

The role of Islamic education against deviant mysticism in the age of globalization

Mohammad Hassan Mirza Mohammadi<sup>331</sup>
Tahere. J. Taheri<sup>332</sup>

Abstract

The 21st century is the century of globalization, a phenomenon which has affected almost anything worldwide. Breaking the boundaries of time and space, globalization has facilitated information exchange among individuals. Indeed, globalization has turned to a deciding factor in each and every aspect of today's life such as economics, politics, industry, and especially education, which is strongly influenced by this phenomenon. Mysticism and deviant religions could be the offshoots of borderless and limitless concepts about the new world order which are energized through superficial minds in the virtual world. So in this article, the authors will review globalization, education, the role Islamic teachings can play to minimize the effect of deviant thoughts, superficial mysticism, in vented religions in the existing globalized and virtual world.

Keywords: globalization, education, Islamic education vented religions, deviant mysticism.

---

331. PhD, Assistant Professor In education, Shahed University

332. M.A in history and Philosophy of Education